The Yeti

Part 4

The Yeti, (20)_____ is a strange type of monster, is now well-known. Since long ago, people have believed they have seen it (21)_____ food in Asian hills. A (22)_____ expeditions have tried to find it in the mountains of China, Nepal and (23)_____, but it hasn't (24)_____ been possible to take a photo of the Yeti.

The Yeti seems to be huge, white and heavy. (25)_____ this is the way it is often described, it is said that Yetis come in a variety of shapes, so this is probably not its (26)_____ usual form.

The fact that this creature hasn't been (27)_____ yet doesn't mean that it doesn't exist, but that it could be shy and afraid of humans. For this reason, this animal -real or not- will (28)_____ be part of our stories.

What is a Safari?

Part 5

What is a Safari?

Part 5

An African Safari is a famous type of holiday, but for Africans this Word only means "a trip". Safaris started in 1850 with a few European explorers and in 1890, "safari" was added to English dictionaries, but they became well-known when American President Theodore Roosevelt went on one in 1909.

A safari in Africa is not an expensive trip taken by celebrities or even science teachers; anyone who is on vacation and loves being outdoors can enjoy one. However, not all activities in Africa, like visiting museums or musical events, are part of this experience; a holiday only becomes a safari when there is contact with animals in the natural world.

Wild animals are everywhere, from Woods to deserts and there are huge elephants in India and kangaroos in Ausralia-, but Kenya is the best place to enjoy a safari. In general, people go on safaris in Southern Africa, as Northem Africa is better known for the Sahara Desert and Central Africa for its rainforest and gorillas.

When thinking of a safari, people usually imagine a 4x4 car, but there are also walking trails; bikes or small planes are not use.

In the past, a safari was a trip planned to catch animals; nowadays, that is only seen in old books and magazines. Today, the money paid for these trips is used for conservation projects which have become important to protect many species.

Part 5

Anime is a Japanese video cartoon that began when Japan tried to make movies in the Western way. To make these "Western" movies, the money was not enough, places were difficult to film, and Japanese actors looked different from other people in the World. So, directors preferred cartoons and asked artists to draw villages or people not found in other movies; for example, they started making people with big heads, lots of hair and colorful eyes.

Most Anime movies come from comics or Manga, which means written and drawn stories. During the 1970s, many Anime movies were based on Manga written by Osamu Tezuka, and artist well-known for his writings about the future, wonderful machines and amazing adventures.

Here in the West, we believe Anime is about Japanese cartoons, but it's actually the word they use in Japan for any kind of video cartoon. The same happens with Manga, which in Japan refers to all comics everywhere, but in the West means Japanese comics. Anime movies are made by special teams with the help of computer programs, while Manga can be written and drawn by a single artist.

International companies rewrite Manga stories from Japanese into other languages and sell them. However, some fans do this before the companies in order to share the stories online for free. So, more people can read Manga now, but some companies say that's a form of stealing.

Here in the West, we believe Anime is about Japanese cartoons, but it's actually the word they use in Japan for any kind of video cartoon. The same happens with Manga, which in Japan refers to all comics everywhere, but in the West means Japanese comics. Anime movies are made by special teams with the help of computer programs, while Manga can be written and drawn by a single artist.

International companies rewrite Manga stories from Japanese into other languages and sell them. However, some fans do this before the companies in order to share the stories online for free. So, more people can read Manga now, but some companies say that's a form of stealing.

40. What made Osamu Tezuka an important writer?

A. his famous movies.

B. his various stories.

C. his old machines.

Part 5

Anime and Manga

Anime is a Japanese video cartoon that began when Japan tried to make movies in the Western way. To make these "Western" movies, the money was not enough, places were difficult to film, and Japanese actors looked different from other people in the World. So, directors preferred cartoons and asked artists to draw villages or people not found in other movies; for example, they started making people with big heads, lots of hair and colorful eyes.

Most Anime movies come from comics or Manga, which means written and drawn stories. During the 1970s, many Anime movies were based on Manga written by Osamu Tezuka, and artist well-known for his writings about the future, wonderful machines and amazing adventures.

Part 6

Does something about living abroad seem extraordinary to you? I understand. That's what inspired me to leave America for the first time and set out on my journey to start high school in France. However, I was shocked that there were several things I had absolutely no idea about until I landed in France and took part in daily activities there.

Before I arrived, I had only experienced foreign exchange students coming to America, never being one. All those students spoke other languages unknown to me. For me, as an English speaker, that was not the case. Once in France, most of my foreign partners spoke English. In some ways, it's positive that people communicate with you in your own language because it's convenient. The disadvantage is you never have that secret moment where you can say things, and no one can imagine what you're saying.

It Will feel shocking to install yourself in a new family's house, but you can handle this. As you start getting along with them, you can start doing things the way you like them, and it gets cozy. However, there are some things you can't do your usual way. It's those Little things that separate your life in your home country fom your life abroad.

If you're thinking about doing this, my advice is "say yes more than you say no". Of course, there will be times when it is acceptable to say no, but if you're turning down a weekend of excitement with classmates or your family there, you're not taking advantage of your exchange. Part of the reason you are living this adventure is to experience things. Say yes and you will not be disappointed.

Part 6

45. What's the writer doing in the text?

- A. convincing people of the benefits to study foreign languages in France
- B. warning exchange students about the culture shock they may deal with
- C. informing students about what he learned after being in an exchange program
- D. encouraging French people to discover what being an international student is like.

46. What can the reader find out about the writer in paragraph 1?

- A. He had a good time studying high school in his hometown.
- B. He ignored several issues about life in France before his arrival.
- C. He had traveled abroad before his departure to France.
- D. He had many unbelievable experiences during his stay in America.

Part 6

47. In paragraph 2, when talking about his own language, the autor means that

- A. speakers of other languages are quite rare.
- B. learning a foreign language is considered unnecessary.
- C. English is familiar to people from different nationalities.
- D. English is rarely spoken if compared to other languages.

48. What makes life abroad different from life at home is

- A. being surrounded by unkind strangers.
- B. the new and surprising accommodations.
- C. the habits you must change to get on with your new file.
- D. the time it takes to have a friendly relationship with the homeowners.

49. The best title for this article could be

- A. How to Handle your Life and Not Die in the Attempt

Part 5

I'm Alexa Smith and I've done lots of things, but I always dreamed of being a nurse. Nurses should be quite kind, brave, and really nice with people. They must be careful with everything around them. I'm like this, so I will be able to be the best nurse when I finish my studies and in a short time I will earn money by doing something I like!

My wish to become a nurse comes from an experience as a teenager. When I was going to visit a friend, who I met through Facebook, I got sick at the airport. Thank God, they found an ambulance and took me to the hospital. A group of fantastic nurses looked after me and I soon got better. Then, I only had to go to the drugstore for a few days. This awesome time at the hospital encouraged me to become a nurse.

At university, we study hospital vocabulary, lots of health subjects and practice at local hospitals. My classmates and I can easily see how nurses help people feel less pain. These people are always glad and thanking them for their excellent job. Nurses work all the time and spend, even their free time, learning how to improve people's lives. Soon, I hope to be ready to start my career in this wonderful occupation.

A wonderful event happened in 2009: The British Museum celebrated its 250th birthday. Since 1759, when it opened, the museum has brought things from all over the world, which are carefully kept and shown to the public. These objects are from people around the world who have made them over the centuries. The first exhibition was organized by Sir Hans Sloane, a doctor whose love for nature and art began when he spent some lovely time in the West Indies, as he explains in his book about the history of Jamaica.

Sloane used most of his money on fantastic trips far from home where he got unusual objects for the museum. He clearly wanted to make sure that, for a low price, everybody could see what he thought were the most wonderful things he collected from other countries. Today's exhibition includes some of the most famous objects from around the world. They're organized in several huge rooms where visitors always look for explanations with the latest information about those cultural groups and future events; sometimes visitors must pay for special exhibitions.

The museum's goals today are to be the center of international cultural studies and to teach people about world cultures. To do this, there are interesting exhibitions and excellent courses on culture. University students are also invited to become full members, which allows them to enter to the museum's library.

35. The event celebrated at the museum in 2009 was

I cannot remember a time when I was not involved in the sport of gymnastics. My mom used to exercise a lot when she was pregnant with me, so you could say that it is in my blood! I love the challenge that gymnastics offer. My coaches taught me the value of setting goals by writing them down and focusing on bringing them to life. In my personal life, gymnastics has given me the essential support to practice other sports, a love for fitness and physical activity, and a skill set that has allowed me to perform well in school and in my professional life.

Nowadays, as a gym owner, I am inspired when I see that same feeling in someone else's eyes and smiles that I once had when I practiced gymnastics. Besides keeping you active, gymnastics also makes your body feel strong and enables you to do different things, such as keeping up with the everyday challenges of living a fast life.

As it happens with other sports, gymnastics is a sport where you fall again and again and have to stand up and continue. This sport teaches you the power of "I can do it. This means you need to work hard to get what you want, but quitting is not an option. To do this, you need to be responsible, confident and spend time doing something that is worth it. In general, gymnastics can bring different benefits for your life, not only for your body but also for your personal development.

43. The purpose of the text is to
- A. advise students on the best techniques to learn gymnastics.
  - B. complain about the issues students have while doing gymnastics.
  - C. encourage students to try gymnastics as an exciting sport.
  - D. convince students why gymnastics is better than other sports.
44. What did the writer learn from practicing gymnastics?
- A. Long workouts are necessary to keep fit.
  - B. Goals in life need to be clearly established.
  - C. Training should be carried out regularly.
  - D. Performance in other sports might be limited.

45. Besides making your body stronger, gymnastics can make you feel more
- A. efficient to deal with daily activities.
  - B. confident about your body,
  - C. creative about your love life.
  - D. engaged with other sports at school
46. In paragraph 3, what does the power of "I can do it" mean?
- A. achieve the aims you are certain about
  - B. carry on with your professional goals
  - C. create other ways to manage hard work
  - D. spending your time on something useful

47. What might be some suggestions to people who want to practice gymnastics?

A.

You definitely need to choose a good gym. You also need to organize the schedule of training and set basic goals.

B.

A good thing would be to approach others who are interested in gymnastics, and hire a personal trainer with monthly practices.

C.

It's important to keep daily trainings going, and check the progress of your goals as well as a record of your achievements.

D.

You might gain some experience by practicing some basic movements, and then joining a group that has some experience.

Machu Picchu means "old mountain" in Quechua, one of Peru's original languages. Machu Picchu was just simply a regular part of nature until the Incas arrived in the middle of the 15th century and turned it into a spiritual place for their kings. It was found again in 1911, and one year later, international visitors began traveling to Machu Picchu.

This place is about 75 kilometers to the north of Cuzco city. Nowadays, the journey to Machu Picchu is very attractive for people who travel often, but it was this mountain in the middle of the jungle which allowed the Incas to build places that would not be found by people from other countries.

More than one thousand stairs opened the way to a special city made from rocks. Machu Picchu had many beautiful places with bright colors for the Incas to spend their time. Inca kings had guest houses where they kept their gold and jewelry. They also had special cooks and people who cleaned for them. We don't know if Machu Picchu was used as a temporary home or if it was a place where the Inca kings lived permanently.

This amazing place combined several activities the Incas preferred, such as improving their communication and growing food. They even used physics and mathematics to create amazing structures to water their plants. The Incas were glad because their engineers studied to build a strong, safe and useful city.

We don't know if Machu Picchu was used as a temporary home or if it was a place where the Inca kings lived permanently.

This amazing place combined several activities the Incas preferred, such as improving their communication and growing food. They even used physics and mathematics to create amazing structures to water their plants. The Incas were glad because their engineers studied to build a strong, safe and useful city.

Machu Picchu

Part 5

Machu Picchu means "old mountain" in Quechua, one of Peru's original languages. Machu Picchu was just simply a regular part of nature until the Incas arrived in the middle of the 15th century and turned it into a spiritual place for their kings. It was found again in 1911, and one year later, international visitors began traveling to Machu Picchu.

This place is about 75 kilometers to the north of Cuzco city. Nowadays, the journey to Machu Picchu is very attractive for people who travel often, but it was this mountain in the middle of the jungle which allowed the Incas to build places that would not be found by people from other countries.

More than one thousand stairs opened the way to a special city made from rocks. Machu Picchu had many beautiful places with bright colors for the Incas to spend their time. Inca kings had guest houses where they kept their gold and jewelry. They also had special cooks and people who cleaned for them. We don't know if Machu Picchu was used as a temporary home or if it was a place where the Inca kings lived permanently.

A Mom's Wish for her Child

When my daughter was born, I started imagining all the events she would have to live. While some moms dream of their child's first day of preschool or college, the most anticipated event for me has been the first time she'd go off to overnight camp.

Overnight camp was the best thing happened to me and for 12 amazing summers, I spent weeks away from my parents at a campsite. For the past 10 years, I've also had my dream job working with summer camps. Now it has come time for my daughter to have this unique opportunity. I know her time at camp will be different from mine and I want her to create her own experience, however, I do offer her these words for her time at camp and for the rest of her life:

"My dear, I wish you get excited when you arrive at camp on the first day. It's OK to feel a bit nervous, but this will make you realize that you can get through hard days in life, too. You'll also learn some things about yourself and feel confident in your ability to make your own decisions. For this, it's important to try new things and be open to meeting new people; you're going to find new role models, and you'll learn that there may be others who can be there for you besides me. I also hope you discover a love for nature and have it stay with you forever."

Sometimes you'll miss home, yet you'll also cry on the last day because you won't want to leave, and that's OK, I'll be here waiting for you with open arms."

41. What's the writer doing in this text?

- A. describing the qualities of a good campsite
- B. advising her daughter on how to enjoy camp and life
- C. promoting the job she has done for twelve years at summer campsites
- D. training her daughter to experience camp the way she has done before

42. What can the reader find out about the writer's job?

- A. She used to work at camps for 12 summers but not anymore.
- B. She had always wanted to work at camps and now she does.
- C. She expects her daughter to go and work with her at camps.
- D. She's looking forward to having her parents visit her at work.

43. How does the writer want her daughter to feel about herself?

- A. ashamed of the hard days she has lived.
- B. frightened of the things she discovers in nature.
- C. certain about her abilities to do things well.
- D. fond of all the new people she will meet in her trip.

44. In paragraph 4, the sentence I'll be here waiting for you with open arms means

- A. the mom will welcome her daughter with love and happiness.
- B. the daughter needs to hug her mom when she gets home.
- C. the mom will cry at home while waiting for her daughter.
- D. the daughter will knock on the door as soon as she arrives.

45. What reply message would the mother like to receive from her daughter?

- A. Dear mom,
I really miss my home and family.
Could you please come and pick me up?
Love you!
- B. Dear mom,
Camp is OK, but don't like the other kids or the new food.
I hope these weeks go by really fast.
Love you!
- C. Dear mom,
I'm really happy here at camp.
I have two new friends and I've learned many new things about nature.
Love you!
- D. Dear mom,
Next summer, I would really like to go to a different place away from nature.
Maybe we can visit a new city.
Love you!
